

Azienda Agricola Frascole

The Frascole estate overlooks the Tuscan town of Dicomano. The estate property goes from an altitude of 350 m. at the Pieve di S. Jacopo to the 470 m. at the Castello del Pozzo and then gently continue uphill to meet the Apennines. Dicomano lies in this small corner of Tuscany, where the Mugello valley ends and the Valdiseve begins, where the Comano and Sieve rivers flow together.

Frascole extends over 100 hectares, a few hectares are at the bottom of the valley but the majority of the vines are set on the hill of Frascole, growing olives and grapes.

The origins of the farm go back to Roman times. This estate has been passed down through the generations of the family. Frascole is known for preserving tradition and promoting the unprecedented value of Tuscany. Their wines include: "Frascole" and "Bitornino", both Chianti Rufina DOCG wines, "Frascole Riserva" Chianti Riserva DOCG, Super-Tuscan "Venia" Toscana IGT, Vinsanto Chianti Rufina DOC.

Since 1998, the entire agricultural estate follows organic agricultural methods. This has meant the renewal of their entire system, from growing high density, low yield vineyards through the use of compact farming and thinning out. In recent years, the wine cellar has been completely renovated and enlarged with the creation of a new vinification room and aging cellar.

Chianti Rufina

DOCG

Varietal/Blend: 90% Sangiovese / 5% Canaiolo / 5% Colorino

Farming Practices: organic

Exposure: SSW

Soil: the soil composition is a clay loam originated by the geological formation called "Marl of Vicchio" (marl and clay marl)

Vine Training: unilateral cordon

Harvest Technique: by hand

Year Vines Were Planted: planted in 1970, 1996 and 1998

Yeast: ambient

Fermentation: crushed and gravity fed into stainless-steel fermenters / maceration for 25-28 days

Malolactic: full malolactic

Maturation: 12 months in concrete tank and used oak casks

Alcohol: 14.5%

Acidity: averaging 5.2-5.7 g/L

Fined: no

Filtered: no

Country: Italy

Region: Tuscany

Subregion: Chianti Rufina

Vineyard: estate

orders@tedwardwines.com

212-233-1504